TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Mayor Short Urges Teachers to Incultate National Spirit in Students

(From Evening Edition)
Four hundred school teachers from all districts of Inspectors Fifth, Leslane and McCreary are now convening at the separate school hall Third street. One hundred and eighty-two are from the City of Edmonton, and the balance are from the districts to the north and west of the city and from the districts around Tule.

Yesterday a session was devoted to the registration of delegates, the addresses of welcome, the chairman's address and the appointment of committees. The officers of the convention are: Hon. President, Hon. J. H. Boyle; president, W. G. Carpenter, B.A.; vice-president, J. A. Yule; 2nd vice-president, Miss A. D. Lyall; 3rd vice-president, J. D. Van Iffland, M.A.; secretary-treasurer, Miss Kathleen Teasley, M.A.

A Civic Welcome.
Mayor Short welcomed the teachers. He said while they were students their influence on the future citizens teachers were makers of history. He urged the teachers to lead their pupils in the path of high ideals and incultate a national patriotic spirit, so that Canadians would be distinguished above the common herd of humanity.

Walter Ramsey, chairman of the Edmonton 2nd school Board, and J. H. Pland, chairman of the separate school Board, spoke in behalf of their respective organizations.

The Chairman's Address.
W. G. Carpenter gave an interesting address on the boy in the public school. He said that while the boy was bound to grow, it depended to a large extent on the school as to how he would grow. It is the role, the character, the boy that most justifies the need for a school.

In referring to the different periods of a boy's life and influential forces therein, he cited the parents who objected to stories of fairies and declared that to the boy there was a Santa Claus. The child playing in the sand pit on taking and pin need to have sympathy than the child who has an over-abundance of mechanical toys. "You may win a boy for a school, but he likes to be recognized," continued Mr. Carpenter, who advised the teachers to use to advantage the universal desire of boys to form into gangs and to be out of doors with nature, and suggested that the boy be initiated through games.

He considered that the work of teachers was to develop the personality on its three sides—knowing, doing and loving. Physical culture, manual training and domestic science, literary and debating societies had their place in school work.

"Of all the artificial influences, the chief factor is the strong, hearty personality of the teacher. The great teachers are not those with many degrees, but those who have large sympathetic hearts," concluded Mr. Carpenter.

NEW DREADNOUGHT JUST LAUNCHED IS TO USE OIL FOR FUEL

The "Queen Elizabeth" Takes to the Water at Portsmouth

Portsmouth, Oct. 16.—Another novelty in battleships, the Queen Elizabeth, which carries an immense armament and uses oil instead of coal for her motive power, was launched at the royal yacht docks here today.

The ship, whose keel was laid on October 23, 1911, is of an entirely new type. Details of her construction have been kept secret.
It is generally believed that her armament is to consist of ten 15-inch guns mounted in battery in barbettes, while her secondary armament of 15-inch or 6-inch guns is also to be placed behind protective armor.

Under ordinary circumstances the carrying of such a big battery would imply a considerable increase in displacement, but this has been obviated by the utilization of oil fuel for the engines in place of coal. The substitution of oil tanks for coal bunkers means great economy in weight and space. In this way it has been possible to increase the offensive and defensive armament, and at the same time, to keep the size and displacement of the warship within limits.

Should the oil fuel prove successful in the case of the Queen Elizabeth all large warships of the British navy will in the future use it. The Queen Elizabeth therefore is regarded as an important experiment.

The ship, which was not quite a year in the building, and will be ready for service in less than two years from the time her first keel plate was laid. Put in "work" was put on her before launching, but it is usually the case with a battleship with a launching weight of 10,000 tons she was the heaviest vessel ever sent afloat from a building slip in any British navy dockyard.

FORT FRASER HOLDS UNINTERRUPTED SWAY IN NECHACO VALLEY

A New Eldorado Lavishly Endowed With Nature's Wonders Awaits the Incoming Settler in Northern Interior

TRANSCONTINENTAL LINE NEARING COMPLETION

Capital of Nechaco Valley Country Will Be Commercial Centre of Thousands of Square Miles of Farm Lands

By SIDNEY HILLINGHAM.
Forests, mines and fertile valleys in the interior of British Columbia are awakening from their slumber. The peace of centuries has been disturbed by a new force which crosses into existence with the building of the railroad—the transcontinental line of the Grand Trunk Pacific—which has undertaken to open up a vast and fertile territory and make available the waste places, creating homes for the hundreds of thousands of settlers who are slowly, yet surely, wending their way to the last great west.

In the history of the development of Western Canada, there have been several annunciations of "the last great west." When the railway development made possible the coming of the farmer to the prairie of Northern Saskatchewan and Alberta, the one, previously, merely a hunting ground, and the latter the country of the big cattle ranges, it was confidently stated that the last great west was undergoing its inevitable transformation. When the Grand Trunk Pacific conceived the idea of striking north to the verge of the Peace River country, that great tract of fertile land was hailed from one end of the continent to the other as positively the last great west.

The last great west.
When the surveyors locating the line through the northern part of British Columbia came upon thousands of square miles of arable land which would be rendered accessible by the coming of the railway, the same became the last and positively the last great west.

And truly, it may with every good reason be said that in British Columbia it is to be found the last—and greatest—west. British Columbia, as the average born hunter, it is, indeed, the majority of its inhabitants know it, is just that fringe along the existing railway lines, fairly settled, and devoted to fruit growing, lumbering, mining and truck-raising. In the hinterland, to be sure, are large areas of land the scene of the wanderings of the prospector, the timber cruiser and the hunter. In sundry out of the way places, the tourist sometimes there may be here and there a ranch, hidden away, but information as to the general nature of the country is, to the average man, merely vague and nebulous.

Men are thinking today that almost of wealth production, for that always has been and always will be important, but they are thinking of something more, the possibility of developing a real home with real home conditions. There is embodied in the very soil of mankind a desire for home—home with all the fulness which that word implies to Anglo-Saxon mind: more place away from the crowded city, where climatic conditions, social environment and commercial possibilities lead to the accumulation, not of wealth alone, but to the development of mankind in nature's best surroundings.

A New Element.
Metaphorically, the eyes of the world are turned to the Canadian West. Here it is that mankind will find a new Eldorado, lavishly endowed with nature's wonders. Between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific coast the line of the T. C. P. is now almost complete. Next year will end the greatest modern achievement in railroad construction, bringing the Eastern maritime provinces and the Pacific seaboard into direct communication. The wealth of the territory opened up by the construction of that railroad cannot be calculated. The work of the railroad builders has been stupendous, but it sinks into insignificance immediately one starts to estimate, no matter how crudely, approximate values of the natural resources which stand, as it were, with open arms awaiting the incoming settler.

Agriculturally, according to government reports and demonstrations by the pioneer prospectors, there has yet to be discovered a more suitable stretch of country than the Nechaco Valley land. The fertility of its soil, the luxuriance and abundance of its crops are only overshadowed by its extent. The capital of this valley and its tributary country has been established at Fort Fraser, a new and thriving city, which thrives under the impulse of prosperity; a city which stands alone, not fettered with the argument as to where the townsite should be.

Opposition Tenuous.
Development at several points in the northern interior has unfortunately been hindered solely on account of a misunderstanding or disagreement as to which should be the proper headquarters. A typical case in point was the almost incessant squabbling over the New Hazelton townsite, between Hazelton and Old Hazelton. It will be remembered, eventually agreed that New Hazelton was to be the logical centre of activity. Then again a similar instance occurs at Fort George, with South Fort George and Prince

SAD ACCIDENT NEAR MORINVILLE

Jon. Buckingford Loses His Life as Result of Accidental Discharge of Gun

Special to the Bulletin.
MORINVILLE, Oct. 16.—On Monday morning Jon. Buckingford, of Morinville, met with an accident attended with fatal results. On the morning in question he was getting ready for shooting and was about to enter his house when he brought him of a gun he had just under one of the new stacks. He returned to the gun and was pulling it towards him when the trigger caught in a shelf and the weapon discharged. The contents of one barrel entered the left thigh, crossing the bone to its core. The report attracted the attention of the family who rushed panic-stricken to the spot. They conveyed the injured man to the house and placed him on a couch. Dr. Ferguson was immediately summoned. After a later examination the physician recommended that the Education ambulance be called up and the man sent to the hospital immediately, accompanied by a doctor. The doctor, however, made light of his injury and did not go to Edmonton till late in the evening, being conveyed to the hospital in an ordinary wagon.

On arriving at the hospital the staff held a consultation and decided on an operation, though they were doubtful of the result, as the patient was weak from the loss of blood, and the getting of the chimney convulsions from nerve had reduced him to a state bordering on coma. However, the operation was carried out, but the action of the surgeon was not too well founded, as he died the following day. The body was conveyed to Morinville and placed in St. Anne's church. The funeral was held yesterday. The funeral was the largest seen in the district for years. There were at least fifty flags drawn up in front of the church during the procession. Rev. Father Levesque, assistant German pastor at Morinville, and the federal services.

SHORTAGE OF STREET CAR TICKETS FEARED

Mayor's Change of Mind Has Embarrassed Street Railway Department

(From Evening Edition).
The proposed new system of selling street car tickets anywhere else except on the street car themselves, has now taken on rather a sickly aspect. Three or four weeks ago Superintendent Woodroffe reported to the commissioners that he was ready to put this recommendation of Chief Engineer down in effect. The mayor then said: "Wait, the ahead!" Now, however, the mayor has asked the superintendent to lay the proposed new method "in abeyance" for the present at least.

In the meantime, the street railway department had the new tickets—fifty for 12½—purchased and ready to put on sale, while the supply of red tickets, which are most commonly used by passengers, was fast running very low. Yesterday night, Woodroffe only ordered eight tickets to arrive only Saturday night. A new supply has been ordered by wire from Montreal, and it is hoped these will be here by the end of the week.

Pilot Blamed for Grounding.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 16.—L. Z. Bonville, the pilot on the ss. Mount Temple, when she grounded a week ago in the St. Lawrence, off Montreal, was today found responsible for the wreck by the wreck commissioner. The captain and officers were found blameless, and to everybody's surprise reference was made to the alleged distraction in the channel.

George in opposition: while Smithers, ex-Prime Minister, finds an understandable and necessary opposition towards in Hubert, which sanctified Police and Aldermen. Fort Fraser consequently holds an uninterrupted sway in a paternal position in relation to the development of the extensive Nechaco agricultural lands, but for many miles both east and west along the railroad.

Fort Fraser District a Mixed Farming Country.

Live stock of all kinds thrives in the favored region and abundant crops of hay, grain and roots are cheaply produced. The whole valley is especially adapted to cattle and horse raising. There is a natural summer pasture indigenous to the valley. Potatoes are successfully raised on nearly every ranch, and in some instances where special time has been devoted to the industry ranchers are making a great increase with each year which the unlimited markets in the surrounding districts are always open and ready. The high quality of the potato and all field and garden vegetables grown along the valley. Potatoes throughout the whole valley strawberry, raspberry, currants and other small fruits are probably cultivated and wild fruits in great variety grow in profusion, the berries in the spring of the year being one mass of white and tinted blossoms.

One does not need to exaggerate about this last great west and its disburdening centre—Fort Fraser. The truth is great enough, even great enough to stagger the credulity of the most optimistic dreamer. While this is a land of abundant opportunities yet success waits here for the man on individual effort and initiative. The man who has the initiative and the ambition to do things are ahead today.
